

Feminist Therapy, Laura S. Brown, American Psychological Association, Washington, DC, 2002

Název kapitoly	Název podkapitoly	Strana
1. Introduction: Feminist Therapy - Not for Woman Only
		1
2. History
Origins of Feminist Therapy		9
	Women and Madness: Exposing Patriarchy in the Consulting Room	12
	Kinder, Kuche, Kirche as Scientific Law: Misogyny in the Science of Psychology	14
	Sex Role Stereotyping and Clinical Judgements of Menatl Health: Science Supporting Politics	16
Clinical Contributions to the Development of Feminist Therapy		17
Stages of Conceptual Development in Feminist Therapy		18
	No-Difference Feminism and Feminist Therapy	19
	Difference/Equal Value Feminism and Feminist Therapy	25
	Multicultural, Global, and Postmodern Feminisms and Feminist Therapy	27
3. Theory
Goals of Feminist Therapy		29
Power and Its Many Faces		31
	Power in the Somatic/Biological Realm	31
	Power in the Intrapersonal/Intrapsychic Realm	33
	Interpersonal/Social-Contextual Power	33
	Power in the Spiritual Realm	34
Patriarchy and Disempowerment: Causes of Distress		34
Key Concepts in Feminist Therapy		38
	The Egalitarian Relationship	38
	Power Dynamics in Therapy: Symbolic Relationship	42
The Invitation to Transformation		43
	Diagnosis?	50
Analysis of Gender and Social Location		52
	Bem's Gender Schema Model	53
	Chodorow and the Reproduction of Gender	54
	Kaschak's Self-In-Context	54
	Root's Ecological Model of Identity Development	55
	Gender as an Artifact of power	55
Adding Social Location to Gender		57
Distress, Dysfunction, and Resistnace: Feminist Diagnosis		58
Etiologies of Distressand Dysfunction		59
	The Question of Formal Assessment in Feminist Practice	61
Feminist Constructs of Distress		62
	Micro-Aggression and Insidious Trauma	63
	Interpersonal Betrayal as Disempowerment	66
"Symptom" as Resistance		68
Multiple Identities as Normative Paradigm		72
	Hay's ADDRESSING Model	73
	Root's Model of Multiple Identities	73
Summary		76
4. The Therapy Process

The Therapy Process	77
Somatic Interventions	78
Psychosocial Interventions	81
integrating the Somatic, Intrapsychic, Social, Contextual, and Mental-Making Dimensions: The Case of Heidi	84
Challenges in the Application of Feminist Therapy	93
5. Evaluation
The Evidence Base of Feminist Practice	99
Feminist Therapy as a Distinctive Practice	100
Effectiveness of a Feminist Empowerment Model	101
Feminist Therapy as an Empirically Supported Relationship Paradigm	101
Where and with Whom does Feminist Therapy Work? Or Not?	102
With Whom Do Feminist Therapists Work?	103
Difficult, Perhaps Subversive Dialogues? Challenges Arising from Client and Context	104
Difficult Contexts	104
Difficult Client Characteristics	106
Feminist Practice in the Absence of the Capacity of Empathy	108
Diversity and Feminist Therapy	109
Womanist and Mujerista Models	110
6. Future Developments
Organizational and Credentialing Concerns	113
Feminist Therapy as an Integrative Psychotherapy	116
Effects of Changing Political and Social Contexts	116
Feminist Therapy's Next Generations	118
Self-Objectification Theory: A Model of Internalized Aversive Oppression	119
Men's Impact on Feminist Practice	121
Postmodern, Not Postfeminist	122
The Continuing Question: Can Therapy Ever Truly Be Feminist?	123
7. Summary
	125